
REREADING. Women and plantations: When violence becomes invisible

In this month of March, we remember a bulletin from 2018 that denounces the layers of oppression that women living around plantations confront. Monocultures impose violence, especially on women, who are pillars of community life. We stand in solidarity with those women who suffer from, resist, and organize against this systematic oppression:

Access the editorial of the WRM Bulletin 236: Women and plantations: When violence becomes invisible, and the complete bulletin.