West African women defend traditional palm oil